

BROOKLYN TROOPERS AT THE CARNIVAL.

First Drill of the Crack Organization From Across the Bridge.

MADE A FINE SHOWING.

THE BICYCLISTS ALL MIXED UP.

Two Races Were Marred by Bad Falls, but All the Riders Escaped Without Receiving Serious Injuries.

The largest crowd of the week filled Madison Square Garden last night to witness the finals in several of the bicycle races and see Troop C, the new cavalry organization, of Brooklyn, give its initial New York drill. It was decidedly a Brooklyn evening. The boxes and seats throughout the Garden were crowded with residents of what the Draft Committee of the Greater New York Commission has seen fit to refer to as the late city of Brooklyn.

Members of the Brooklyn regiments were out in force to see the final heats and cheer their men who were successful enough to be in them.

The fashion of Brooklyn turned out in force to witness the drill of Troop C. The members of Troop A and of Captain Dodd's Troop F of the regular army were greatly surprised at the showing made by the Brooklyn riders, and were loud in their praise of the work of Captain Clayton's men. When they entered the arena several horses shied and caused the formation to be so broken that the impression was bad.

The spectators were inclined to feel sorry for the troop. As the drill progressed the work of the men grew better and the horses became accustomed to the glare of the lights and the noise. After a short exhibition drill of four and a charge or two the troop, which consisted of fifty-six men, was divided. The first division gave a dress drill while the others changed from a dress to a fatigue uniform.

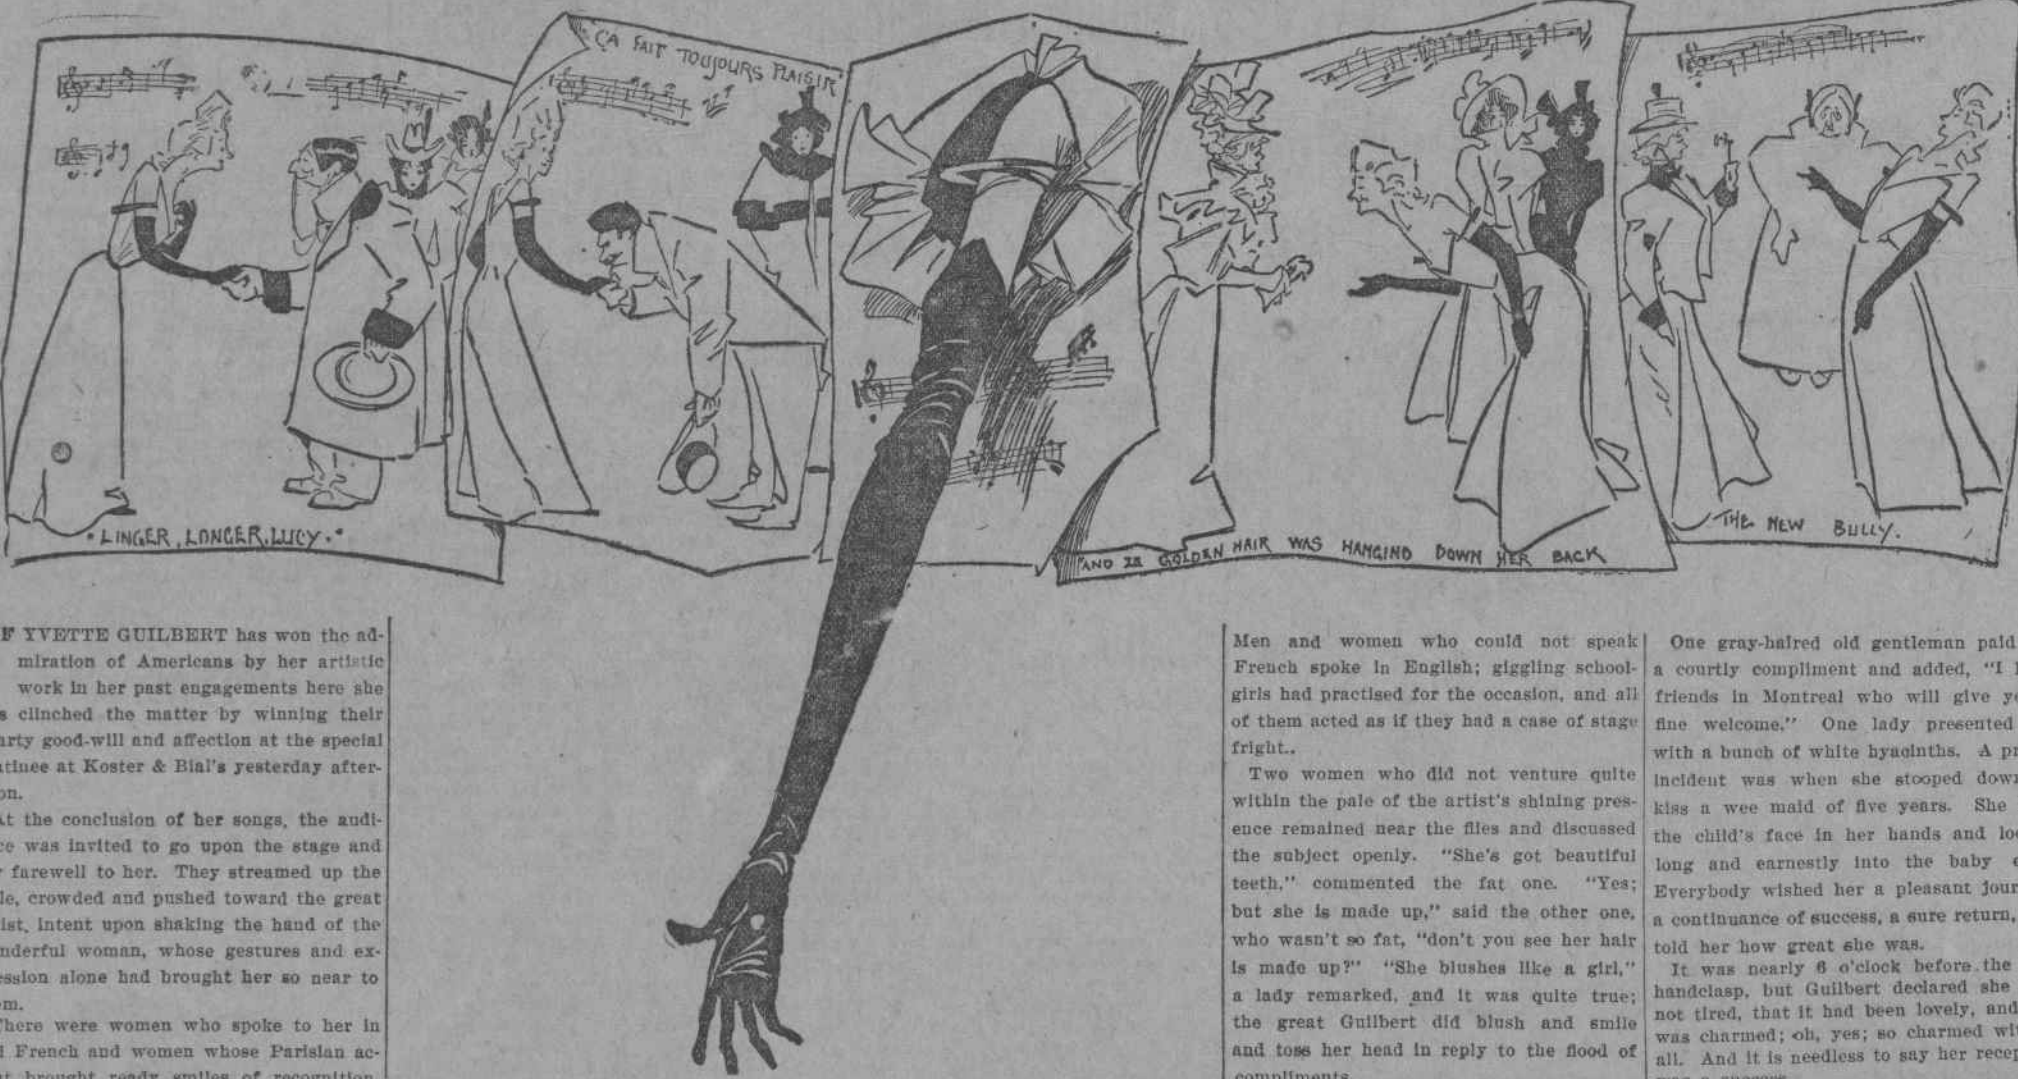

Looked Like Captain Dodd's Men.

When the dress drill was finished the division gave way to the men in fatigue dress, who, looking like Captain Dodd's men, rode into the ring without saddles. The troop was mistaken for Troop F and were greeted with a cheer as they galloped into the tank enclosure to give an exhibition of rough riding.

The drill consisted of mounting and dismounting and gymnastic exercise on horseback, mounting by leaping from the ground while the horses were at a full gallop, and dismounting by leaping from the horse and running to another at a full gallop. Hurdles were brought into the ring and an exhibition of jumping followed.

The drill was beyond the fondest hopes of the friends of the troop, who cheered at every new feat. The drill closed with an exhibition of wrestling that showed the perfect command the majority of the men had over their horses. At its close Captain Dodd remarked that it was a magnificent exhibition and highly creditable to any cavalry organization. Officers of the National Guard went to the stables to congratulate Captain Clayton on the showing.

YVETTE GUILBERT BLUSHES, SMILES, AND SHAKES HANDS WITH HER ADMIRERS.

YVETTE GUILBERT has won the admiration of Americans by her artistic work in her past engagements here she has clinched the matter by winning their hearty good-will and affection at the special matinee at Koster & Bial's yesterday afternoon.

At the conclusion of her songs, the audience was invited to go upon the stage and say farewell to her. They streamed up the aisle, crowded and pushed toward the great artist, intent upon shaking the hand of the wonderful woman, whose gestures and expression alone had brought her so near to them.

There were women who spoke to her in bad French and women whose Parisian accent brought ready smiles of recognition.

His men had made and tell him how pleased they were with it.

Captain Dodd, who followed Troop C's drill with his regulars, gave one of the best exhibitions the troop has given during the week, introducing many new movements in their dress drill.

In the athletic events the interest centered in the final heat of the half-mile National Guard championship, the heats of which were run Tuesday night. The race was won by W. H. Owen, of company F, Twenty-second Regiment, in 1:10. Judge, of the Twenty-second, being second, and Miller, of the Twelfth, being third. The result gave great satisfaction to the members of the Twenty-second, who yelled themselves hoarse.

The dead heat in the 440-yard race between Snodgrass, of the Seventh Regiment, and Bock, of the naval reserve, which was run Thursday, was run off. Bock was sent back three yards for making a false start, and lost by less than five yards.

Bicyclists Get a Fall.

In the final heat of the championship half mile bicycle race for members of the Second Brigade, a bad mix up occurred on the Twenty-seventh street side of the Garden, near Fourth Avenue. Bennett, Crooke, Sanford and Green were bunched, Crooke being on the outside. As they struck the turn Bennett's wheel slipped, catching Crooke's machine. Bennett's wheel went over the embankment, and Crooke took a header into the crowd. Crooke was unable to finish the race, and Bennett walked his wheel around, finishing third. Sanford and Green were uninjured.

Spectators in the Boxes.

Among those present and occupying boxes were:

Lieutenant Claus, General and Mrs. E. A. McAlpin, Mr. and Mrs. Davis Nixon, J. Fredrick Hahn, Mr. and Mrs. Robert Dunlop, Miss Latta Crabtree, Mr. and Mrs. Bradshaw, Mr. and Mrs. R. Lawson, Mr. and Mrs. John Barr, Nelson Kyle, H. L. Bennett, Fred Bronson, E. E. Oakley, Adjutant and Mrs. Henry, Adjutant and Mrs. Relfonstah, Mrs. Mackay, by members of the National Guard and the regular army, and the riders will carry a $20 gold piece, freshly struck from the mint in Philadelphia, to Mrs. General Miles, who will receive it at Madison Square Garden.

Following is the summary of the athletic events:

POISONED HER OWN BABY.

Mrs. Stehr Saved Its Life by a Frantic Run Through the Streets to Bellevue Hospital.

Mrs. Emma Stehr, twenty-two years old, whose home is at No. 566 First avenue, spent all of yesterday as usual, toiling in a cigar factory next to her home. The monotonous work was brightened by thoughts of a six-months-old baby, little Bernard, whom she had left in the care of her mother and sister with explicit instructions about the medicine for his sore throat.

As she entered the squalid apartments which she called home at 8 o'clock and took in her arms her little treasure, she kissed it and then inquired if the medicine had been given. She was somewhat worried when she learned that it had been neglected. She promptly prepared to remedy this fault. From a neighboring shelf she took a bottle, which she thought held the medicine, but which, instead, was filled with liniment containing a quantity of chloroform. She discovered her mistake after the baby had swallowed the stuff.

Her grief was terrible, but its intensity did not cause her to lose her presence of mind. Throwing a warm shawl around the infant, she sped away to Bellevue Hospital, where she lives by quick work there the doctors succeeded in saving the child's life, and the mother carried it home again late last night in comparative health.

"I can't rest without him," she said, as she left the hospital. "Want him by my side where I can put my hand on him. Oh, if he had died from the poison I would never have forgiven myself!"

Millionaire Must Pay Butcher

Babylon, L. I., Jan. 15.—Millionaire George W. Ewing, who was sued yesterday in Justice Cooper's Court by George T. Thorne, a local butcher, for $150 for meat furnished the Ewing family and dogs during the past season, was ordered to pay the amount claimed by Thorne.

Cuba's War Kite.

LET SPANIARDS SURRENDER OR DIE IN SUNDAY'S JOURNAL.

Men and women who could not speak French spoke in English; giggling school-girls had practised for the occasion, and all of them acted as if they had a case of stage fright.

Two women who did not venture quite within the pale of the artist's shining presence remained near the files and discussed the subject openly. "She's got beautiful teeth," commented the fat one. "Yes; but she is made up," said the other one, who wasn't so fat, "don't you see her hair is made up?" "She blushes like a girl," a lady remarked, and it was quite true; the great Guilbert did blush and smile and toss her head in reply to the flood of compliments.

One gray-haired old gentleman paid her a courtly compliment and added, "I have friends in Montreal who will give you a fine welcome." One lady presented her with a bunch of white hyacinths. A pretty incident was when she stooped down to kiss a wee maid of five years. She held the child's face in her hands and looked long and earnestly into the baby eyes. Everybody wished her a pleasant journey, a continuance of success, a sure return, and told her how great she was.

It was nearly 6 o'clock before the last handclasp, but Guilbert declared she was not tired, that it had been lovely, and she was charmed; oh, yes; so charmed with it all. And it is needless to say her reception was a success.

WANTS WOMEN ON THE BOARD.

Dr. Jacobi Says Two Should Be Charity Commissioners.

NEEDED IN INSTITUTIONS.

Women Physicians and Students Should Share in Hospital Privileges.

A plea that two women should be placed on the Board of Charities—which should consist of five Commissioners—was made before the Greater New York Commission yesterday, by Dr. Mary Putnam Jacobi, acting for the Association for the Advancement of the Medical Education of Women.

In making her argument Dr. Jacobi said the presence of such large numbers of women and children in the institutions under the jurisdiction of the department justified the appointment of women among the officials by whom these institutions are to be controlled.

"In addition to this reason," Dr. Jacobi said, "our association has another, more especially its own. This is, we desire that women medical students and women physicians should obtain their just share in the medical privileges of the city hospitals. Through the hospitals belonging to the future boroughs of Manhattan and Bronx alone, nearly 18,000 women pass in the course of a year. The hospitals which receive these women render a double service. They care for the dependent sick, who otherwise would receive no care, and they provide a large and valuable field for the clinical instruction of students, without which it is impossible for physicians to be trained. Women physicians and students have received legal and also professional recognition, and nevertheless, they are still almost entirely excluded from this necessary field."

She said that in this city the example of exclusion set by the institutions controlled by the Board of Charities is imitated by the private corporate hospitals. Even the Women's Hospital, founded by women and exclusively for women, still persists in its refusal to admit women either as students, internes, or visiting physicians—indeed in any capacity but as patients or nurses.

In asking for the appointment of two women Commissioners, she said that territorial jurisdiction should not be assigned to them, but they should be appointed as Commissioners-at-Large, to act with the Board as a whole, and each have a vote in its decisions, and should perform such duties as should be assigned to them by the Board.

Charles E. Miller spoke on the chapter relating to charities, as a representative of the Foundling Asylum. He recommended that any money provided by the city for the care, support and maintenance of inmates of charitable institutions should not be expended for any other purpose.

For the Anti-Equilibrium League William E. Rogers said that if the present provisions of the charter went into effect New York would have to bear the burden of taxation.

"I think," he said, "the boroughs should be made units of taxation and assessment, and the amount to be expended for each borough should be collected from that borough. I don't think it is fair to increase the taxes of New York in order to lessen the taxes of Brooklyn. The rate in this city last year was $2.14, while in Brooklyn it was $3.40."

"Do you think it would be practicable to apportion the general expenses among the boroughs?" asked General Tracy.

"Yes, sir; I think it would."

"Well, that would be a mathematical problem I would like to see worked out," said the chairman.

Thomas G. Shearman, representing the Brooklyn Revenue Reform Club and the New York Tax Reform Club, asked the Commissioners to provide that the local authorities should have power to decide for themselves what property should be taxed.

"Our object is to give the city power to exempt from taxation personal property, leaving it, however, to pay its full share to the State. Widows and orphans alone are successfully taxed in regard to personal property. All others pay voluntarily, because there is no means of finding out the value of their personal property."

Charles Bink, of the Real Estate Owners and Builders' Association; President John P. Leo, of the Builders' League, and Richard Deever, all argued that in case plans and specifications in regard to building should be approved by the Commissioner of the Department of Public Buildings there should be a Board of Appeals composed of experts, who should pass judgment on the question and determine whether the plans and specifications were in accordance with the law or not.

Wesley C. Bush, Commissioner of Public Buildings in Brooklyn, expressed his pleasure at the action of the Commissioners of the Department.

"I would suggest," he said, "that the board of three Building Commissioners should be composed of experienced, practical constructors. I think, also, that the salary of the Commissioners should be mentioned in the bill."

General Tracy said this had been provided for.

William J. Fryer, of the Board of Examiners of the Building Department, suggested that a qualification be put upon the man who shall be appointed Commissioner of Buildings.

Tracy may safely assume this will be done," said General Tracy.

William C. Moore, president of the Board of Fire Underwriters, said three commissioners was entirely too small a number, and there should be at least twelve, of whom the Chief of the Fire Department should be one.

After Albert E. Henschel had argued that the Corporation Counsel should be elected, and not appointed, the commission adjourned.

ASKS FOR A STAY FOR ZUKER.

Lawyer Howe Contends That Witness Myers Was an Accomplice of the Firebug.

Lawyer Howe applied to Justice Beach, in the Supreme Court, yesterday, for a stay of proceedings in the execution of the sentence passed on Zuker, the firebug, pending an appeal to the Appellate Court.

He said that while Judge Fursman had given them one of the fairest trials ever held in this country, yet he had perverted the testimony to get before the jury in allowing Witness Myers to testify regarding Zuker's connection with the fire in Newark, N. J., which occurred eleven days before the Division street fire, for setting which Zuker was convicted.

Mr. Howe also claimed that Myers was an accomplice of Zuker, and that Schoenholz, the principal witness against Zuker, was also an accomplice.

Assistant District Attorney Beach argued that the Division street fire and the Newark fire were the result of one scheme, and that it was proper to introduce the evidence of the latter on the trial. He asserted also, that Myers was not an accomplice. Decision was reserved.

FOX TERRIER SEIZED BY BURGLAR.

The Latter Had Disturbed a Prayer Meeting and Came to Grief.

The regular prayer meeting of the German Baptist Church came abruptly to an end at about 9 o'clock Thursday night. The church is in One Hundred and Eighteenth street, between Second and Third avenues. The Rev. Ralph T. Wagener, its pastor, lives in a four-story frame dwelling next door. Dr. Wagener was just on the point of bringing the meeting to a close by prayer when his servant, Caroline Nason, rushed into the chapel, screaming "Burglars!"

Dr. Wagner rushed from the church, followed by a large part of his congregation, and Policeman Allen joined the party. Dr. Wagener, tried to open the parlor door, but it was locked. Allen broke in the door just in time to see a man jump from the window. He followed, and for a time the fugitive and the officer ran a hurdle race over the fence. In the back yard of No. 214 East One Hundred and Eighteenth street was a fox-terrier, owned by Dr. Wagener. The moment the burglar appeared in the yard the dog grasped him and held him till Allen came up and arrested him. The prisoner was taken before Magistrate Crane, in the Harlem Police Court, yesterday morning and said that he was Joseph Nelson, of No. 26 West One Hundred and Twenty-eighth street. He was held in $1,000 for trial.
